

Dress Code

Residents and Fellows are expected to wear white, long lab coats or those specified by the Program. Identification badges should always be attached to the white coats.

Professional appearance is expected at all time. Patients, their families and the administration expect Residents and Fellows to be clean and appropriately attired at all times. Jeans or scrub suits are not considered appropriate apparel when interacting with patients. If it is necessary to leave the operating room or delivery room wearing scrubs, then Residents/Fellows will wear a white coat. When leaving the hospitals to attend clinics or other functions, the Resident/Fellow will change clothes and not wear scrub suits.

It shall be up to the individual Resident/Fellowship Programs as to whether to provide lab coats and/or laundering services or to require purchase by the Residents/Fellows.
